sel will be sighted first. It is not probable that the Alameda will hurry as she arrives in time to get the quirantine inspection as early as possible. It place if the tenant so desires. would not be any advantage for her to arrive sooner than 6:30 because the doctors will not go out before that hour. It is probable that the Siberia will take the same course although the two vessels may race to see who will get the inspection first. It is probable that the bulk of the mail was dispatched on probably be passed first.

It is very likely that the two meamers cruised along close together all the way down, something that would be very pleasant for the passengers to whom the routine of day after day with no sail in sight becomes very tiresome. Such a voyage would have many interesting possibilities. For instance a chess or whist tournament might be played between the two ships, the results being communicated by means of the signal code. The fears of the nervous passengers would be stilled with the reassuring thought that another ship is at hand to rescue them from the perils of the briny deep.

The Siberia is by far the larger and more powerful of the two ships and S. S. Nebraskan.....June 22 S. S. Nevadan.....July 7 was built for a speed of twenty knots. The Alameda on the other hand is twenty-one years old and was built for a fourteen-knot boat. She always makes sixteen and when pushed can make over seventeen. She was built in a time when pride in turning out fine ships was stronger than the desire to make money It is doubtful whether any vessel was ever a better investment than the Alameda which after twentyone years of continuous running, with Phone Main 58. only one reconstruction, keeps her place in the schedule with fast modern ocean
